LAD, 6, DROWNS IN THE CANAL AT THE EDGELEY LOCK

David F. Flail, Haines Road, Edgeley, is Victim of Accident

BODY IS RECOVERED

Funeral To Be Held Here Tomorrow Afternoon At 2 o'Clock

A six-year-old boy drowned in the canal near the Edgeley lock Saturday evening at about 8:15. David F. Flail, the victim, strayed from sight of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Jacoby, whom he was visiting at the lock.

The lad, son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Flail, Haines Road, Bristol Township, went to the home of his grandparents for a visit. He had been playing about when suddenly he was missed. A search was started by the grandparents and anxiety increased as the lad failed to answer calls. It was about 8:30.

Finally the lad's body was discovered in the canal and aid was summoned. Mr. Jacoby, according to Bristol Township Chief of Police Joseph Seader, was operating a tractor in a nearby field and Elwood Stockhouse was fishing. The two recovered the body.

Units of the Lower Bucks County Marine Association responded to the call, and also a physician. The Marine Association units worked for three hours in an effort to revive the lad, but were unsuccessful.

Bucks County Coroner J. Alfred Rigby was called and the body was taken to the funeral home of John C. Black, Bristol.

The survivors, in addition to the lad's parents, are two brothers, Joel, four; Russell, six months; and a sister, Laurel, 9.

Services will be held at the Black funeral home, 314 Cedar street, tomorrow afternoon at two o'clock, with burial in Bristol Cemetery. The officiating clergyman will be the Rev. Theodore Kolmeier, pastor of St. Luke's Lutheran Church, Croydon.

David was listed upon the cradle roll of St. Luke's Sunday School.

Friends may call this evening at the Black funeral home.

It is the opinion of David's parents that he tripped over a stick or stone and fell into the water.

Claim They Will Put An End To Dog Nuisance

EDISON, July 19—Doylestown Township Emergency Police plan to put an end to the dog nuisance in this area.

A brief portion of the meeting was devoted to a discussion relative to social memberships, and in this connection it was said the organization hopes to build up its social membership list. These members, it was announced, will be welcomed at the meetings and they may have access to the club rooms at any time. One of the social members, Lloyd Stover, was a guest.

Howard Hooven and Ralph Hager were welcomed into membership, and announcement was made that the ambulance had been used during the month to take a boy from Furlong to the office of a physician in Doylestown to receive treatment for a dog bite.

The organization has been given the use of the National Guard range for pistol practice, and Samuel Ely offered to give instructions. Oliver Ewer was appointed to organize a dart team.

After the business session, the facilities of the television set were enjoyed and refreshments were served. No meeting will be held next month and announcement was made that the next session will be held on Wednesday evening, September 8.

The inconvenience caused the public in going to Philadelphia via the trolley, because of the break in the line at Croydon, has been the cause of a great deal of kicking lately by Bristol's citizens. The loss of time caused by transferring from the trolley line to a slow old stage coach and from that to a mule car, is so great that the public cannot afford to patronize the road. The citizens of Bristol are thinking seriously of holding a public indignation meeting and to appoint a committee to wait upon Mr. Gau, at Croydon, to ask him to withdraw his objection to the completion of the road, and grant the privilege of continuing it along the turnpike in front of his property.

On last Saturday afternoon, a beautiful new flag, 10x15 feet, was given to the breeze from the recently erected pole on top of the mansion house of the Altemann Verein. It is said the ceremonies of the occasion were the first of a public nature since 1861, when the borough's flag was hoisted at the junction of Mill and Radcliffe streets.

The exercises were opened with a short address by Gus Rathke, the president of the Verein, and who was master of ceremonies. A prayer was given by Rev. Bemuller, of Tacony, pastor of Bristol German Lutheran Church, after which a number of selections were played by the Liberty Concert Band. During the music the flag was run to the top of the pole, and at a given signal was unfurled by Misses Hattie Seltzer and Lillie Schull, wearing a regalia of the national colors. Hon. B. F. Gilkeson made an address upon the flag.

Mr. Charles E. Scott of H. Clay Beatty Post, was the next speaker. Frank F. Seull, president of the council, then made a few remarks.

Goodwill Hose Company's new hose house will be dedicated on the morning of the Fourth of July, with appropriate exercises. The masons, carpenters and painters are at work on the new building and by the Fourth it will be a model house, conveniently arranged, and a comfortable home for the company. A meeting was held on last Monday evening to make arrangements for the day. Fire companies No. 1 and 2, and the Third and Fourth Ward hose companies have been invited to participate.

They thought—the men who had the job to do—that it would take Task Force 38 two days to sink the old battleship New York. They thought she would stay afloat under anything guns and planes could throw at her, so they planned to give her the death blow with torpedoes.

They were wrong. It took only one day and nothing bigger than five-inch shells and 500-pound bombs.

They didn't get a chance to try out the Navy's "bat" bomb, the 2,000 pound missile fitted with wings and a tail that finds its target by radar. That was unfortunate. Any experience with this weapon is useful. But it is doubtful if anybody out there was greatly disappointed. This was an unwelcome duty, at best, and it was better to have it ended without delay.

The New York was a great ship—a "grand old gal." She had been through a great deal, especially in her old age. Commissioned in 1914, she saw service in both World Wars—and set a record at Okinawa when her guns battered the Japanese positions for 76 days on end. Then, when the fighting was over, she survived two atomic bomb blasts at Bikini.

But that word "survived" is misleading. When the Bikini tests were over the New York was still floating. She had suffered little damage. But she was radioactive. And she never was decontaminated. She was still "hot" when they towed her out from Pearl Harbor to put her out of the way.

Those atomic bombs failed to destroy the New York but they made her useless. Two years later she was still useless. No doubt the Navy's experts have drawn the proper conclusions but civilians will wonder what sea power means in the age of atomic weapons.

In Maryland some parents are insisting the public schools return to teaching reading, writing and arithmetic. And if they can add a bit of spelling it will help those who later aspire to newspaper work.

Now that planes travel faster than sound, there's nothing left for scientists to do except invent faster sound.

Grandma and Grandpa have been vindicated. Experts say it is impossible to spoil children.

for additional luncheons as money-raising affairs for the church building fund. Presiding at the business meeting was Mrs. Joseph Everett, Middletown township, with "travel" games during the social hour in charge of Mrs. Hugh B. Webster. The hostesses, Mrs. Edward Smith, Newportville, and Mrs. Davis, served refreshments.

AMERICAN TRACK SQUAD MAY COME UPON GREATNESS

By Davis J. Walsh,
(INS Sports Writer.)

ABOARD THE SS. AMERICA, July 19—(INS)—Practically at the end of its sea-going rituals today was a 65-man American Olympic track squad which, in the days immediately ahead, may well come upon greatness—or dire mediocrities.

Its quality is infinite, its vulnerability immense, but it is confident, talented, superb, self-assured and terribly young; a great thing, because its doubts are so few and its memories practically none.

Due east, for instance—48 travel hours and 10 calendar days away—lay London and the XII Olympiad. A strangely ominous pair.

But only an absolute gaffer, complete with wattled neck and watered eye, would know that the Olympics thus are completing a rather sinister cycle, and, after 40 years, are returning to London, much as might the nostalgic assassin to the scene of his morbid deed.

It was, in fact, London's 1908 Olympic meet which started the fashionable idea that, as a get-together for the peoples of the earth, experiment always had the trouble of separating them afterward. Fortunately in this case, time intervened before it became necessary to call out the palace guard or the United States Marines.

Unfortunately, 40 years have changed neither the scene nor the set-up—an all-English case of officials, passing judgment on the usual succession of American victories.

The present United States track and field party, of course, might furnish some unwanted and unwilling co-operation, if it happened to realize on its latent capacity for non-success.

Anyhow, a defeated American is not only a novelty abroad, but a curiously popular one; so the fact that today's squad seems potentially vulnerable could have its compensations. Personally, we'll settle for soap wrappers but, in any case, the vulnerability must be conceded when a team does this:

Eliminates and leaves behind the greatest shot-putter that ever lived, Chuck Fornville, with his world record 58½'.

Leaves behind the world's indoor record holder, Gil Dodds, with his 4.95 3-10 for the mile.

Eliminates the world's greatest hurdler, Harrison Dillard, from his specialty, but takes him along as a second-rate sprinter.

But these equally could be a testimonial to its innate greatness, which some have assayed as high as 12 individual titles at the Wembley meeting and a place on the pedestal of time equal to any ever occupied by an American track and field team.

The chances are it isn't as good as the 1936 team at Berlin, but it won't have to be. In all probability, it'll have less to tick and for these cogent reasons:

(a) All Europeans are supposed to be war-punchy. (b) The Germans and Japs won't be there, by special invitation.

But that as it might, a renewal of America's sweep at Berlin from 100 through 800 metres might have few repercussions not within the meaning or text of the original Olympic oath. This one would be blunt and four-lettered—the kind not only fit to stop a clock, but maybe turn it all the way back to 1908.

"Toots," idling along the Strand in the cool of the evening, suddenly found silk toppers bashed down over their outraged ears. Turning irritably, they discovered the Messrs. Flanagan, McGrath, McDonald, Ryan and Sheridan, of the Irish-American A. C., set out upon a round of good, wholesome fun.

This, of course, tended to promote a certain amount of misunderstanding and, as they say, one thing led to another.

While the process was on, one American winner was disqualified outright and another, Johnny Hayes, in the marathon, was only acknowledged some hours after officials inside the Stadium twice picked up the fallen Dorando Pietri, of Italy, and stood him on his feet.

There were harsh words exchanged, and some motives impugned, when the Irish-American "Whales" wound up on their ноги in the tug-of-war with—all people!—the Liverpool Bobbies.

There was resentment in the American camp when Reggie Walker, of South Africa, beat Jimmy Rector, of Virginia, in the strongest 100-metre final ever run.

The lead changed hands three times—Walker broke fast, led at 20 metres; Rector, giving it the gun, led at 50; then Walker came again at 80, and it was all over.

In less than 24 hours, irate British officials were ripping up the tape in the midst of a 400-metre final, claiming their man, Lt. W. Halswell, had been fouled under the then non-lane racing conditions.

They ruled of the winner, J. C. Carpenter, of Cornell, and ordered the two-three men, W. C. Robbins, Yale, and John B. Taylor, to race against Halswell the next day. They refused, claiming Carpenter guilty.

So Halswell went it alone—in the only "walk-over" in Olympic history.

HIBERNIANS GO UP ANOTHER STEP

The Hibernians climbed another notch in the Bristol Suburban League yesterday afternoon with an easy 13-1 triumph over the Voltz-Texaco nine on Memorial Park field. The Hibs' victory dimmed the gasmen's hopes for a play-off spot.
